

STOP GAMBLING, SAYS MINISTER

Rev. Young Calls for Reform.

Public Officers Too Ready to Forget Pre-Election Promises.

Pastor of First Methodist Church Declares That Laws Are Not Enforced.

Loyalty to principle, especially in political offices, was the plea made by Rev. Benjamin Young at the First Methodist church yesterday morning. Men in political offices are too ready to sell out, too ready to go back on promises made before election, said Mr. Young, and reform along this line is the crying need of the hour. His remarks, the speaker said, ought to find application not a thousand miles from Salt Lake.

"Herod vs. John the Baptist" was the theme of the sermon, and the speaker sought to show John's fidelity to truth, to truth and right, no matter where one finds himself, he said, and that if he has eyes that do not deceive him, there should be a revival of the law governing this evil and a more rigid enforcement of it.

HOME FOR THE LORD.

Tabernacle Speakers Rejoice That the Son of Man Hath a Temple.

The speakers at the Tabernacle yesterday were Seymour B. Young and Rulon S. Wells. Among other things, the former said: "Churches have been dedicated in the name of St. Paul, St. John, St. Michael, and other saints, but none were dedicated to the Lord. The first people to offer a house for the acceptance of the very person from whom they expect and desire blessings, said Mr. Young, was the Latter Day Saints. Up to that time it was true that the foxes had holes, and the birds of the air nests, but the Son of Man had no place to lay his head. A little handful of Latter Day Saints, in poverty and weakness, with one accord, builded a place that He should be no longer without a place to lay his head or to rest the soles of his feet."

Rulon S. Wells spoke at some length of the spirit of evil, saying: "There is an evil spirit abroad in the land. We must fight to keep from coming under its influence. We can get rid of it by the laying on of hands."

Prof. Gillilan Speaks.

Prof. J. M. Gillilan of the High School occupied the pulpit at the Tabernacle yesterday morning. In his address, he said that the trend of thought was for more sincerity in prayer, or rather, to pray by doing. In the evening, Mr. Young gave an interesting talk on missionary work in the Philippines, with special reference to the work of the American missionaries in the islands. Some excellent musical numbers preceded and followed the address.

CONCERT IS ENJOYABLE.

Held's Band Performs Before a Large Sunday Crowd.

Held's band gave its usual Sunday concert to a fine audience last night at the Grand. A popular programme was performed and the most favored numbers received warm applause.

The April Chorus from "Il Trovatore" was evidently the most appreciated. It received the best treatment at the hands of the band and was very enjoyable. The Pilgrim's Chorus from "Tannhauser" needs no more rehearsing. During part of this selection the wind was ahead of the brass. This was evidently a new piece for the band and the rendering can be improved upon. A Ragtime Overture by Holman was very enjoyable. It was well played by the band and went with a fine swing. A caprice by Oren Smith was very early a date as possible. The effective "Robespierre" overture by Litolff was very good. But a piece called Trombone Minuet, arranged by Chamberlain, should have been omitted from the programme. It is not music and gives very little pleasure. Miss Ellen Thomas of Ogden was the vocalist.

WILL SAIL ON TRANSPORT.

Mrs. M. H. Beardsley Is Enabled to Join Her Son at Manila.

Mrs. M. H. Beardsley, now of 201 Pine street, San Francisco, Cal., and for many years a resident of Ogden and other Utah cities, recently wrote to Senator Kearns, stating that she desired to visit her son, Willis T. Beardsley, at Manila, P. I., and requesting the Senator to urge her transportation at an early date as possible on a United States transport. The Senator acceded to her request, and yesterday received a letter from the Quartermaster, Gen. C. F. Humphrey stating that if accommodations are available Mrs. Beardsley can sail on a transport leaving San Francisco December 1. Willis T. Beardsley was recently promoted from the position of auditor to that of inspector of postoffices at Manila.

The ladies of the Central Christian church hold a fruit cake, mince meat and plum pudding sale Tuesday at the Fire and Tenth Cent store, 24 South Main street.

Boy Slasher May Be Sent to Asylum

Case of Roy Scott to Be Placed in Hands of District Attorney Whitaker Today.

Roy Scott may be sent to Provo. The case of the young slasher will be placed in the hands of District Attorney Whitaker today. The boy is still in the city jail.

A strong effort will be made to have the prisoner examined as to his sanity. Doctors are many of them of the opinion that Scott is a subject for the insane asylum. His condition and his own statement of it go to show, according to well-known members of the medical profession, that Scott diagnosed his own case correctly, when he said he was a monomaniac. Chief of Police Lench and the county attorney will consult on the case this morning.

CHRISTMAS DOLL SHOW.

Citizen Suggests That One Be Held for Poor Children of the City.

Recalling the many poor children of the city who never realize the pleasure of Christmas, Edgar S. Darling suggests his readiness to start with a liberal contribution a fund for a doll show for Christmas day, to which all children shall be invited and everyone provided with a doll.

"I believe there are many good-hearted people of the city who would gladly unite in making Christmas of this year a very pleasant one for the unfortunate children," said Mr. Darling yesterday. "To this end I would suggest a doll show, to be held on Christmas day, with the children gathered in and each sent home with a doll."

"Let the pastor of each church appoint a committee of five with himself associated, the Bishop of each ward the same, the Salvation Army the same, these several committees to report to a general executive committee at five o'clock on the morning of Christmas day. There are many who would take delight in taking home and dressing the doll furnished for the purpose by the committee. Many ladies would meet at some house in their neighborhoods and set apart a day or two for the dressing of dolls. 'Tickets' could be issued to the needy children and on Christmas day let them meet at some public place where the dolls would be on display and every one sent home happy, hugging a doll to his heart's content."

"If the morning papers would take up this matter and receive the subscriptions, I am sure a fund would be readily subscribed to enable the committee to provide dolls enough to make a happy Christmas of little ones of our city. I would gladly contribute $10 and I know there are at least fifty ladies who would be happy to contribute a like amount. Can we not make Christmas this year a day long to be remembered by the poor children of the city?"

Favors Rest on Sunday.

PARIS, Nov. 20.—The Sunday rest movement is assuming a practical phase by the vote of the superior council of the ministry to enact a rigid law providing for a compulsory day's rest weekly. The council has recommended that Sunday be a day of rest, unless the nature of a person's occupation compels it to be otherwise. The movement is the result of the growing disregard of Sunday observance in building operations, shop trade and most other branches of industry.

LOVELORN MAID IN PAINTED CELL

Was Jilted by Her Fiance.

He Wrote Her a Note Saying He Had Found Another Girl.

Christina Nelson Becomes Violent, Threatens Family and Is Taken Into Custody.

Disappointment in a love affair has caused Miss Christina Nelson, aged 22, of this city, to become violently insane. Six weeks ago, according to the statement of her brother, the young lady received a note from her sweetheart, stating that he had found "another girl." The message seemed to unbalance the girl's mind and she has been in a morbid state ever since. The man in the case is J. L. Larsen, an employee of the Faust Creamery company.

Appeared En Disshabille.

Some weeks ago the girl arose early in the morning and without waking any members of the family for whom she was working, came down into her scanty attire. She was discovered near State and Fourth South streets by a police officer, but had little to say. Saturday she was in an unusually melancholy condition and refused to talk to any one or to eat. Sunday morning when members of her family attempted to arouse her from her morose state, she became violent and began breaking up the furniture and raising a general disturbance. All efforts to quiet her were futile and Sheriff Emery was finally called upon to take the woman into custody. She was taken to the county jail and placed in the padded cell, where she soon quieted down and seemed rational enough, but had little to say.

To a Tribune representative a brother of the unfortunate young lady stated last evening that the sudden termination of her love affair was responsible for her sad condition.

She Was Engaged.

"She and Larsen had been keeping company for some time, and I believe, she was engaged to him. Only a few weeks ago he sent her a note stating that he had found another girl. The message upset her. She was very much upset and she has not been herself since."

The young lady seems to be a nervous and delicate person. Her brother, who is a physician and her relatives hope that she may be restored to her natural state of mind without being sent to the State asylum.

City and Neighborhood

AFTER a lingering illness, Mrs. Louise Burgen Knowlton died in this city last Tuesday and the funeral will be held next Tuesday at the Seventeenth ward meeting hall at 2 p. m. Mrs. Knowlton was 54 years of age and had lived here since 1871, coming from Portsmouth, England. She was a devoted member of the Presbyterian church and leaves two sons and a daughter. Her husband also survives. Mrs. Knowlton, who had been ill for some time, died peacefully at her home.

ONE of the best song services heard here in a long time was that at Phillips Congregational church last evening. The church was filled and the congregation greatly appreciated the beautiful music rendered. The programme included solos by Miss Turner and Miss Dunham; several fine anthems by the choir and a quartet, including Mrs. Turner, Miss Dunham, Mr. Frewin and Mr. Nettleton. This closing number was an especially pleasing one, and the four singers blended beautifully, and each doing artistic work in the solo parts.

BURNING grass threatened a barn in the rear of 784 South First West yesterday afternoon. The flames, which were being kept under control by the fire department, threatened to spread through a big patch of grass and weeds lying in a prairie fire and were close to the building when the department arrived. They were then extinguished without difficulty.

MURRAY'S peace guardians and deputies from Sheriff Emery's office are still busy looking into the records of Austrians employed in the smelters with a view to finding the man who outraged Mrs. Gustave Schwan last Monday night. Each man's personality and record is being closely watched. There was much comment on the fact that the municipal and provincial authorities participated in the prosecution for the fatal shooting of Sunday of the kingdom of the two Sicilies.

Max Beavers Loses Wife and Child

Popular Official Is Deprived of Two Members of Family in One Week.

Sympathy in full measure will go out to Max Beavers of the City Treasurer's office on the double affliction which has come to him in the past week. A week ago yesterday the two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Beavers died of malignant diphtheria, and yesterday the friends of the family were shocked to learn of the death of Mrs. Beavers, which occurred at an early hour yesterday morning. Death was due to paralysis of the heart, which resulted from the diphtheria.

Three weeks ago yesterday Mrs. Beavers gave birth to a child. In a few days the baby, named John, seemed to improve, however, until the death of her little son, when a change for the worse was noticed. Early yesterday morning Mrs. Beavers was attacked with a paroxysm of pain in the region of the heart and died within three minutes. A clot of blood on the heart, superinduced by the blood poisoning, resulted in paralysis and caused death.

Funeral services over the remains were held yesterday afternoon at the family residence. A sister of Mrs. Beavers, Miss Bennett, is still convalescing from diphtheria, having taken it from the little boy whose death occurred a week ago. The brief services over the remains were held at the home of Mrs. Beavers, where the remains were buried.

Mrs. Beavers was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William B. Bennett of West Jordan, and was in her twenty-seventh year. In addition to her husband and three children, she leaves several brothers and sisters and many friends to mourn her loss.

MONEY GONE; TOOK POISON.

Hugh Wilson Attempts Suicide Rather Than Face His Wife.

Hugh Wilson tried to kill himself with morphine sulphate last evening because he and his wife do not get along. Wilson walked into the stables of the Palace market, took the morphine and then he took the poison. Then he said goodbye to his wife, James Householder. The latter and Wilson's brother notified the police and the police in turn telephoned to police station.

Patrolman Moore and Driver William Armstrong took the man to the hospital. There they administered antidotes and pumped out Wilson's stomach. At an early hour this morning the man was released from the hospital.

Al Wilson, the brother, said that Hugh Wilson was a hard drinker at times. He said that he had seen his brother face his wife. This seems to have started the trouble which led to his taking about two ounces of morphine sulphate and a quantity of poison, including arsenic, Hemptle and several members of the night shift, kept the man from sinking into a comatose state before the arrival of the physician.

RECEIVED THE REPORTERS.

Denver Scribes Went to See Rils, and They Saw Him.

Jacob A. Rils, the noted writer and sociologist, was yesterday shown about the city, and a special organ recital was given for him at the Tabernacle, with Tracy Y. Cannon at the organ. Miss Rils, who is now in the ranks in which she rendered for President Roosevelt during his memorable visit, a reception of the city of Denver during the visit of the University club tomorrow afternoon.

That Jacob Rils, once a police reporter for the New York Sun, has not forgotten those who are now in the ranks in which he once toiled, is evidenced by an incident which occurred in Denver during a recent visit he made there.

It seems that four police reporters of that city, who heard of Rils' visit, were in the same department. That he had reached the heights of fame, they considered a great honor. And the quartet, which they determined to call on him, "He will know what it is to be a weary, busy man, and he will know what it is to be a criminal," said one, "and we will visit him in a body and show that we are glad to hear that one police reporter of the world has had as good a time as the mire in which we live and move and have our being."

The quartet started on their mission, but as they approached the Brown Palace hotel, where the lecturer was stopping, they began to have doubts about the wisdom of their mission. The quartet suggested one, "so that if we have the door shut in our faces we will not feel that we have been deceived. And the quartet was met with immediate approval, and the libations were not few. The quartet finally found their way to the door which guarded the entrance to the hotel, and they were met by a man who said, "You are not Mr. Rils from the public. One of them timidly knocked. The barrier was opened by the secretary, and the quartet entered. Under the auspices of which Mr. Rils was to lecture. In answer to the question of whether Mr. Rils was the secretary said that he was, but he added, as he looked on the faces of the four visitors to Mr. Rils, who now, would he call again who you are—all in more of a condition—ah."

"Are they police reporters?" queried a voice from the quartet.

"Yes, sir, four of them; but, Mr. Rils, there is a distinct suggestion of alcohol in the atmosphere, which I cannot help attributing to you."

"That's all right; let 'em come right in; I want to see 'em," said Mr. Rils, and the quartet entered. The quartet, in high spirits, filed in, while the secretary vanished through the door, muttering, "What a bunch of fools!"

For an hour Mr. Rils entertained his visitors with stories of his life interspersed with advice and suggestions. The quartet was so much interested that they took a drink in memory of the days when he did police work. The quartet was so kind and gave such good reasons for not taking one, that the ardent one, who had been so full of advice, said, "Come on, Jake, and take one with the bunch," became at once a supporter of Mr. Rils' resolution not to take a drink.

On the way downstairs after the audience the quartet spoke enthusiastically of their reception. "He knew the customs and the habits of the police reporters, all right," said one. "He's there with the 'big knowledge' and he's got 'em turned that secretary down for us," remarked the third enthusiastically. "Let all take a drink," said the fourth, "our friend, good old Jake," was the pleasant suggestion of the bibulous one.

Of the four visitors to Mr. Rils, only one did his apportioned work that night, and he, strange to say, was the bibulous one.

ARE EAGER FOR INSTRUCTION

Night School Pupils Ambitious.

Demand for a Business Course Cannot Be Satisfied.

Records Show That Most Children Leave Public Schools in Fifth and Sixth Grades.

Instruction in a business course is the demand of students who wish to attend the Congressional night school, now holding its sessions in the Gordon academy. At present this demand cannot be satisfied through lack of funds, but it is hoped by those most interested in it that the course may be given soon. It is estimated that the expense would be somewhat greater than for the grades, which as yet are not wholly equipped for their work, although the city schools are supplying them with books as fast as possible.

Generous Teachers Help.

There is now an attendance of 170 students, with new ones coming in almost every night. Some of the teachers give up three nights a week to this work gratis, but a number more have now volunteered, so that the school is now able to give regular work keeps them teaching all day in the public schools, are relieved two nights a week by two other teachers.

As the school has been discovered through the night attendance at the school, the largest attendance is in the fifth and sixth grades, proving that a greater number of children stop school after the fourth grade than at any other time. This is a very serious situation, as the children are growing up in the city with only the beginning of a primary education. The children themselves, who attend night school, seem now to realize how this state of affairs has crippled them in their work.

Japanese Quick to Learn.

The Japanese boys who were noticed on the first night for their interest in the work, and their declaration that they wanted "to take the whole thing," have made rapid progress, being now in the sixth grade. The spirit of eagerness and earnestness among the students still prevails, and is evidenced by many touching examples of self-sacrifice and devotion. It speaks for the seriousness with which the students view their work that there is scarcely a case of tardiness. One student, who lives on South West and Sixth East came in breathlessly one night last week, just as the school had begun. It was necessary for him to advance to the street here today. He had come a distance to the school and return that far afterward, but he evidently felt that he was doing his duty.

Many Little Workers.

It is quite natural that a business course should now be demanded by the students, as they are composed of workers in business places all over the city, and are looking for a practical help to advancement. They are cash boys, factory girls, workers of all kinds, as they finish the grades, look forward to the business course which they hope will soon form a part of the school course. And there are many not in the school who are only waiting for the work which they desire most.
